

An abstract artwork featuring a vibrant orange background. Large, irregular shapes in bright yellow and dark green/black are layered on top, creating a sense of depth and texture. The shapes appear to be torn or layered, with some yellow areas showing through the orange. The overall composition is dynamic and expressive.

The simplest exterior often hides profound beauty.

For Beauty is but Reality seen with the eyes of love.

Education must open to us this power of vision.

For all day long we are seeing things, but their beauty passes us by.

To develop an awareness of the beauty waiting to leap at us from ambush.

We must learn to see, to sense, and to wonder:

If we walk through the world without such sensitivity to beauty, both life and love will pass us by.

and reach out with a child-like sense of wonder to grasp the beauty in the simple and the everyday.

So that love may penetrate our beings and bring forth praise for Him Whose Beauty we see reflected in our world, for Him Whose Beauty is past change.

We must learn now to stop and see.

SEPTEMBER The simplest exterior often hides profound beauty.

Although we will never be positive about the cause for the expression on this frustrated freshman's face, an educated guess might be that they just ran out of the last required book.

A new addition to our campus, these gates, gift of the Class of '61, serve as a symbol of our entrance into the wonderful world of NDSJ and a reminder of our mission to spread the spirit of that world throughout our lives.

‘All of a sudden,
it’s something new’

Amid the scurry of registration day, student body president, Mary Ann Westerhouse, greets bewildered freshmen with the novelty of student body cards.

Behold the look of utter amazement on these freshmen faces as they discover the staggering number of books needed for just one student.

Striving to become immersed in the living reality of the Mass, we place an unconsecrated host, a symbol of our entire being, into the ciborium to be presented to the priest by student officers in an offertory procession. "Take us too, O Lord, transform us...."

There are two kinds of things in this world — in things and out things.
A thing can be in because it's simply great or so far out that it's in — like the

SISTER SUPERIOR MARY EMMANUEL

Principal

The tall, ever-active figure, familiarly clad in contrasting colors is easily recognizable as Notre Dame's chief administrator. As the practical woman of affairs she confronts all problems with clear-visioned dedication to an Ideal; yet the traffic of decisions does not prevent her from being accessible to anyone. Whether untangling a student's problem, encouraging a faculty member, or grooming the back stairs, Sister Superior Mary Emmanuel stands for Notre Dame.

SISTER MARY ANTHONY

Vice-principal

The little lady of Our Lord who wears a black habit, a devilish grin, and speaks in contagious riddles and rhymes is Sister Mary Anthony, our vice-principal. Her office often bubbles with laughter over pictures of Charlie Brown, but it can be a serious place, too. Sister Mary Anthony strives to mold dreams and imagination into reality by solving the practical and often perplexing problems of curriculum programming and testing. In addition she serves as "chief sorceress" in the physics and chemistry lab and still has time to lead seniors through the bramble of biblical study and apologetics.

SISTER MARY LORETTO

Treasurer

Every day Sister Mary Loretto goes over her three R's — receiving, receipting, and recording—as she quietly and efficiently performs the task of treasurer.

ADMINISTRATION

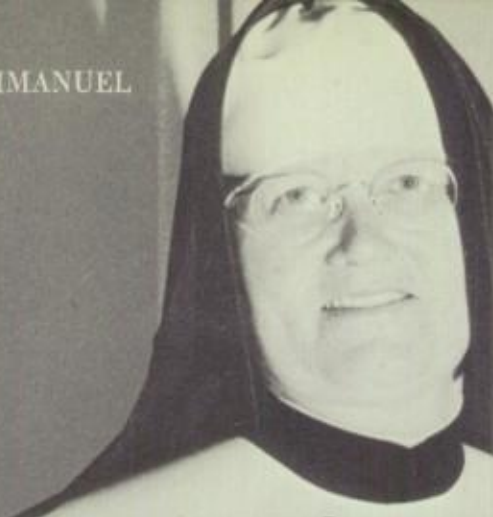

SISTER MARIE DAMIEN

Dean of Students

Discipline may be good for the soul, but the benefits of demerits and detention are debatable to recipients of these dubious honors. The pain of punishment, however, is lessened by Sister Marie Damien's contagious vivacity, boundless energy, and dauntless approach to her job as Dean of Students.

SUE NEEDHAM

SUE NEEDHAM

Athletic Manager

Sue Needham brought her vim and vigor to the Athletic Department as she and Miss Barreto worked to put sports, sportsmanship, and physical fitness in their proper places. With or without the Wheaties, she gave athletics that extra boost.

KATHY O'SHEA

Treasurer

Balancing anything requires skill, efficiency, and level headedness. Kathy O'Shea found these qualities plus a good business sense beneficial in balancing books and budget as Student Body Treasurer.

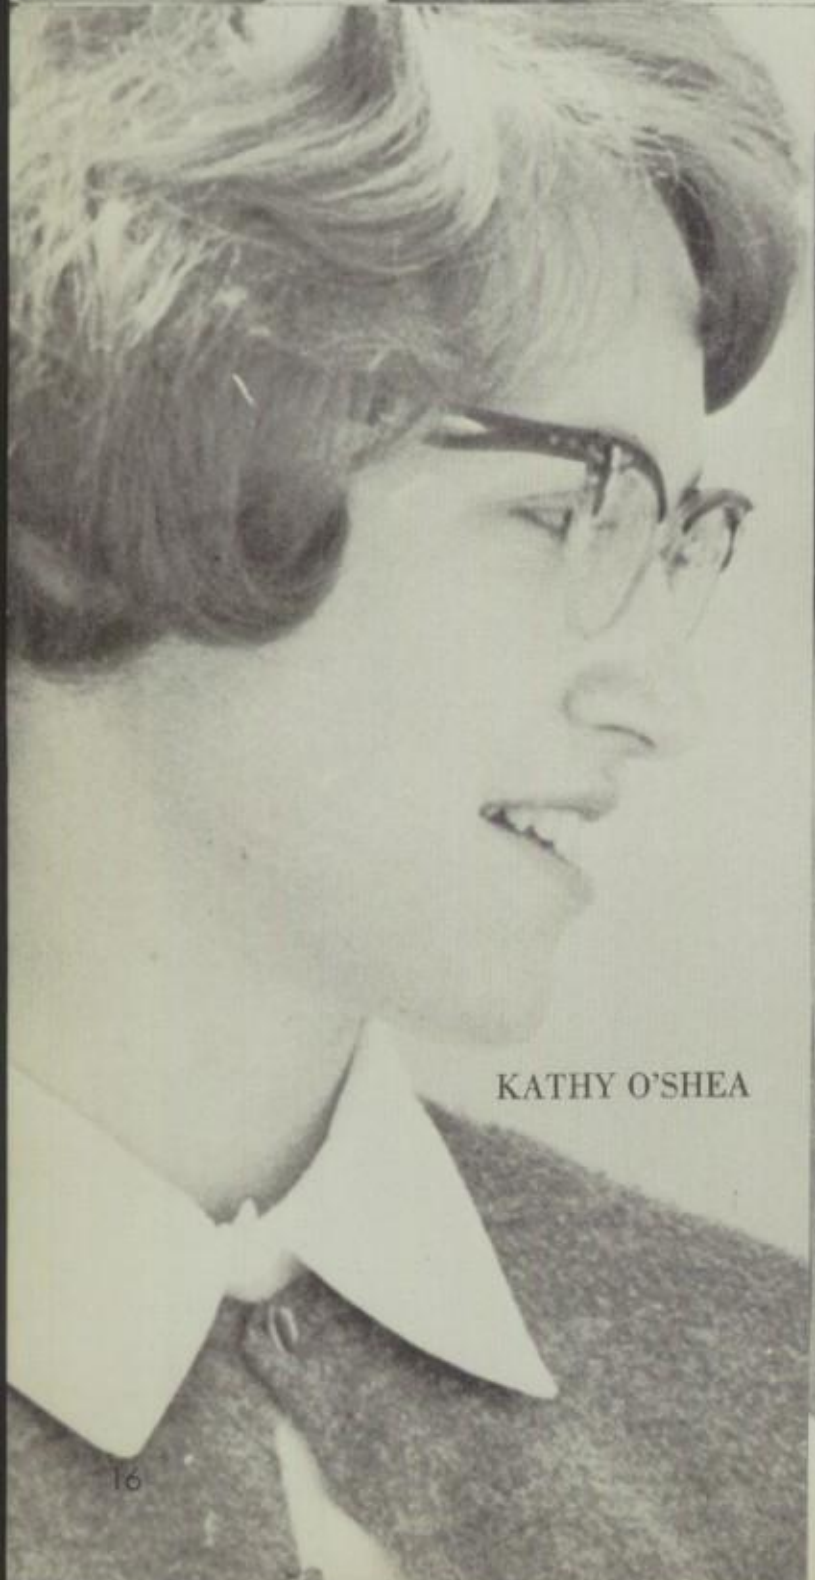

ANNE RIOLO

Armed with an oatmeal cookie, pencil, paper, and an always bright smile, Anne Riolo has efficiently and capably taken over the strenuous and often tedious job of Student Body secretary with a cheerful willingness to work, to learn, and above all to serve.

President

Edward R. Murrow once said or almost said "No school has ever been great that was not called to greatness by its leaders." Motivated by a very deep sense of responsibility, a genuine thoughtfulness for others, and a love for Notre Dame, our president Mary Ann Westerhouse set the school moving ahead with vigor as she made beneficial innovations that contributed much to the betterment and greatness of Notre Dame.

CATHERINE STOUT
Vice President

VP are very important initials at Notre Dame. There is, however, a slight controversy over their meaning. The various interpretations are Very Personable, Valuable Patience, Versatile Partner in administration, Vital Personality, Vaticinal Padishah, and Verifier of the Piezo electric effect. It seems that Vice President is the conventional version but all interpretations are applicable to our Vice President, Cathy Stout.

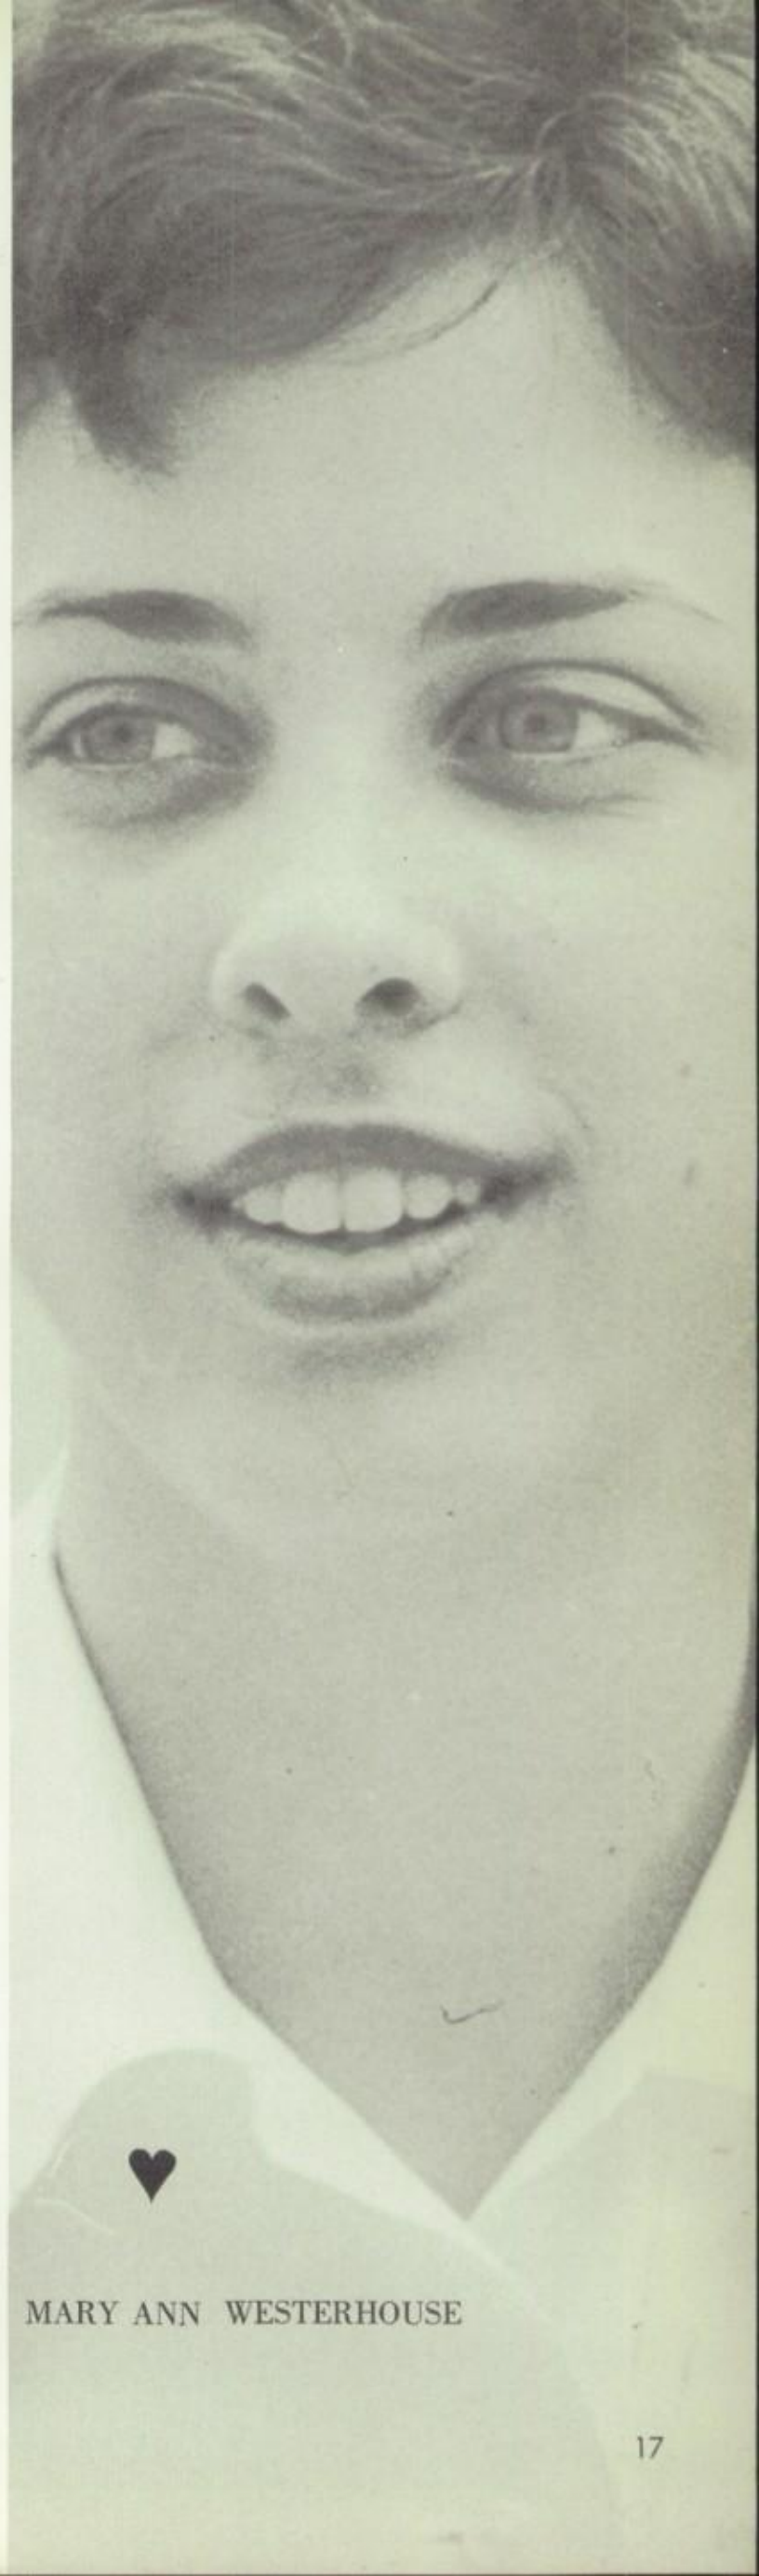

DONNA SERRA
Public Relations

To reflect Christ to the public is the duty of every Notre Dame student, but this responsibility holds special meaning for the public relations manager. For Donna Serra this duty has been an expression of love for Notre Dame expressed especially in her tireless zeal for the March of Dimes campaign, her organization of the Reporters' Board, and her stack of copy sent to the Moniter and Mercury.

ROSALIND SCHIROS

Smiles appear at each Student Body meeting as Roz Schiros conveys her message to us in her own unique way. She displays tactfulness as she puts rules effectively into the form of poetry. In enforcing school regulations, Roz attacks her job with vigor and efficiency so that through her direction we may better reach the goal of our maturity—mastery of self.

MASTER ROMMEL VON NOTRE DAME

Master Rommel von Notre Dame stole his way into many a Notre Dame heart as he assumed his duties as our canine protector. Born August twenty-fifth and arriving on October nineteenth, Rommel was our barking ball of fuzzy fur who boasted four enormous paws that flew in all directions when he attempted to run. We delighted in this clumsy stage, sent him to school, and then proudly watched him emerge as a cunning graceful guardian, full of playful puppy pranks and loved by all.

Docility, wisdom, unity. The threefold theme of the senior program, as presented by Peri Lou Maciel, June Turturici, and Maureen Dowd, rises as a threefold prayer that the twenty-first Ecumenical Council may serve to renew the Church's interior life and help unite all Christians as members of the One Christ.

Ecumenical Week

YOU are church

"You are the Church . . . you are a person, unique unto himself, whom God has called into existence in His own image and likeness, whom God has called by name and given a vocation, an eternal destiny." The Church, personified by a sophomore verse choir during Ecumenical Week, challenges us in dynamic tones to bring to our war-weary world social justice, peace, and love.

Juniors, Jeanne Haller, Barbara Andes, Anne Howe, Joanne Banker, Linda Weslow, Marianne Wegner, Candy Callahan, Karen Minardi, Linda Pomeroy, JoAnn Freeland, and Suzanne Welch summarized the work of the cardinals spearheading the ten preparatory commissions for the Twenty-first Ecumenical Council, illustrating in their panel the Church's concern for effective organization

Music, having its source within man's soul, can be a spiritual experience bringing every man a step closer to God. In the spirit of the Ecumenical Week, Sister Martin de Porres, assisted by the choral group, demonstrates unifying similarities in Catholic and Protestant religious music.

ECUMENICAL COUNCIL

MEET THE CHALLENGE

IN THIS AGE TERMED THE "AGE OF JAZZ" THE CHURCH HAS SEEN A HUMAN SOCIETY GLORYING IN SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNOLOGICAL ADVANCES, SUFFERING FROM SOCIAL DISORDERS, AND LABORING UNDER A NEED FOR SPIRITUAL GOODS. SHE HAS RECOGNIZED THE NEED FOR AN ECUMENICAL COUNCIL TO RE-EMPHASIZE THE PERENNIAL POWERS OF LOVE AND UNITY AS EXPRESSED IN THE GOSPELS. SHE HAS REALIZED THAT ALTHOUGH CHRISTIANS HAVE DEFINITE DIFFERENCES, THEY HAVE A STRONG BOND IN CHRIST. AS A MEMBER OF THE CHURCH, WE HAVE THE DUTY TO BE INFORMED OF THIS MOVEMENT OF OUR DAY SO THAT WE CAN LIVE IN THE ECUMENICAL SPIRIT. IN AN EFFORT TO ACQUAINT THE STUDENT BODY WITH THE COUNCIL'S WORKINGS, NOTRE DAME DEDICATED THE WEEK OF OCTOBER TWENTY-SECOND TO THIS STUDY. DURING TIME SET ASIDE FROM THE REGULAR SCHOOL SCHEDULE, EACH CLASS PRESENTED WELL-PREPARED PROGRAMS OR POSTERS PERTAINING TO THE COUNCIL. THROUGH THIS WEEK OF PRAYER AND LEARNING WE SOUGHT AND EXPLORED THE PURPOSES OF THE TWENTY-FIRST ECUMENICAL COUNCIL. WE TRIED TO BECOME IMMersed IN THE ECUMENICAL SPIRIT SO THAT WE WHO ARE THE CHURCH MAY HELP GUIDE ALL CHRISTIANS TO THE UNITY, WISDOM, AND DOCILITY FOUND IN ONE FOLD UNDER ONE SHEPHERD.

At the conclusion of the YCS Mary Workshop each participant expressed her love for and devotion to our Blessed Mother by taking part in a Bible Vigil conducted by Reverend James Devlin, S.J.

Mike Mohr, national YCS full-time worker from Chicago, finds discussion lively in his meeting with Notre Dame YSCers as he shares and receives ideas about the lay apostolate channeled through the work of Young Christian Students

YOUNG CHRISTIAN STUDENTS

The organized Lay Apostolate stands as a mirror reflecting the beauty, love and goodness of Christ — an expression of service of Him in this world. The principal aim of the Young Christian Students is to train future members of the Lay Apostolate. Dedicated apostolic students of today are the dynamic Catholic laymen of tomorrow — not concerned with showy, colossal accomplishments, but determined to effect a lasting change in the society around them. Y.C.S.ers are apostles sent to help in the work of bringing Christ to others. This is a means of extending our religion from a central point — Christ — outward to all existence and translating the beauty of His teachings into the reality of life.

As the vast realm of swells and breakers crashed on the sands of Monterey, curious Sophomores discovered new horizons in God's unadorned beauty which realm of fascination unfolded before them. Urchins, barnacles, sea shells and sand crabs were in quest as avid scavengers sought wisdom in the essence of seashore splendor.

Education must open to us this power of vision.

Through the study of living things, there is slowly unveiled an exciting realm of fascination in a new view of life. Here there is magnitude even in the microscopic because everything reveals its special significance. Our hunger for each fragment of beauty is insatiable—each facet of knowledge makes us see One more clearly as God, Whose littlest playthings are the objects of our greatest amazement.

LEARNING

Religion rests on truth, the truth that God is. The religious class is a laboratory of our progressive sanctity which combines a study of the liturgy—the life of Christ lived by His Mystical Body, the Church; the Sacraments—the “ways and means commission” for those en route to heaven; and the Bible—God’s explanation of God. The religion department of Notre Dame gives to us the formula of our Catholic faith, hoping that we will carry these teachings beyond our four years and live convinced of the truth that God is.

For three days, November seventh, eighth, and ninth, Fathers Stephen Mahoney and Michael Weishaar, O.F.M., assumed the role of coach to direct us in the spiritual exercise of our annual retreat.

We live in a world caught within a labyrinth of noise — the roaring of cars, the constant clash of empty words, the whirl of presses pouring out tales of trouble and war. Seldom is it that silence is heard or even noticed, and seldom does one hear the quietude of God. Retreat, however, permits us to listen to silence, to search the corners of our souls, and to see ourselves in relation to God. Retreat teaches us to replace the noise of emptiness with the harmony of Simplicity.

and to ponder the words of the retreat masters in an attempt to gain a greater knowledge of Him and a vision of ourselves in Him.

Rocketed by determination, twenty of our Gremlins set no limit as they strove for perfection in athletic competition. The J.V.'s opened the 1962 Volleyball season with a thrilling defeat of Mother Butler which started their drive toward a perfect season. A flawless record was achieved through the suppression of Mora, Mercy and Holy Cross. Although Varsity did not follow suit, winning only to Holy Cross, they displayed great skill and fortitude throughout the season.

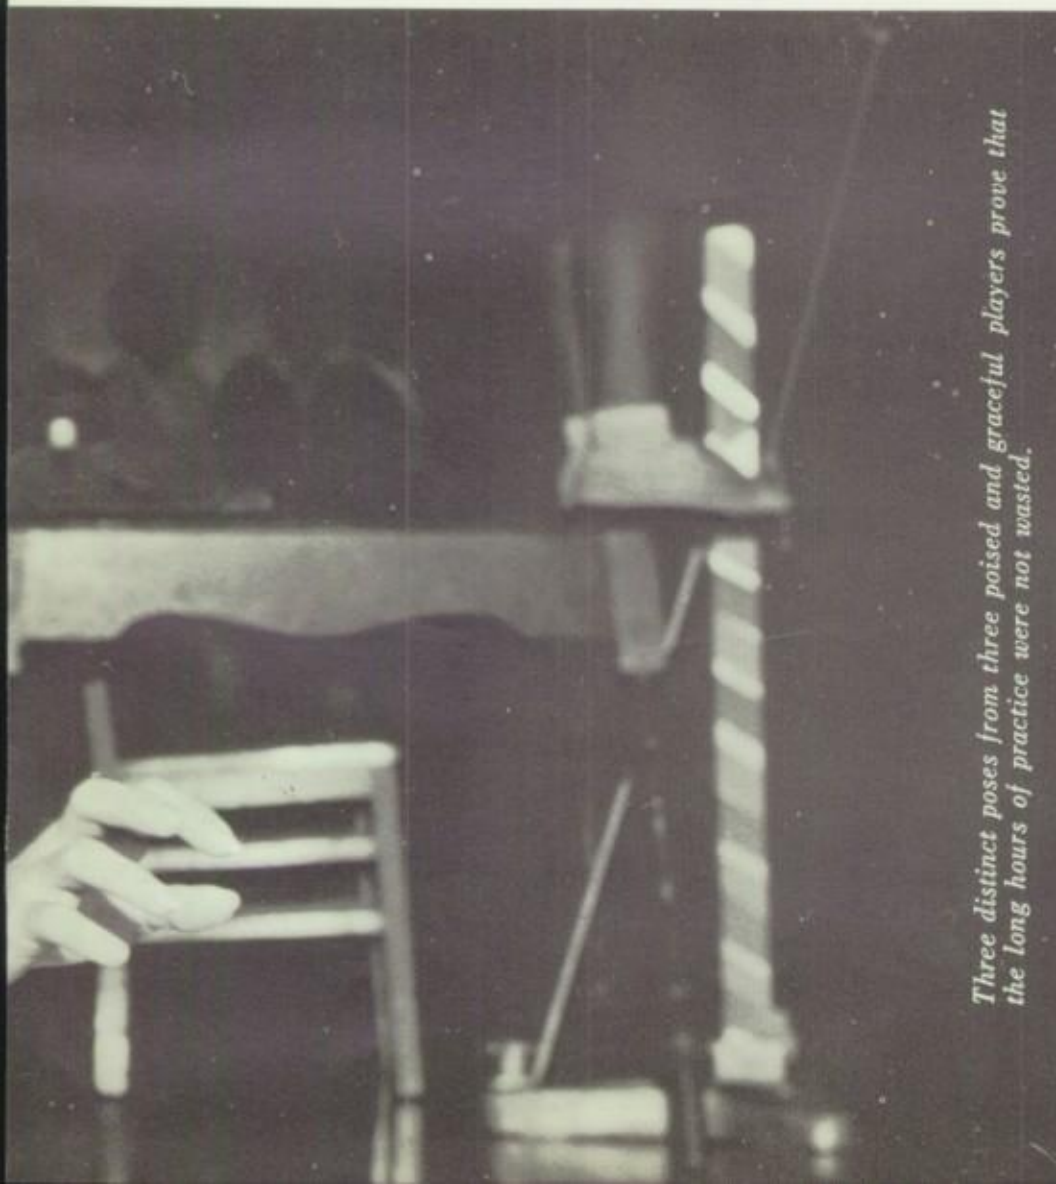

Varsity cheerleaders Cathy McCarthy Donna Cambra and Cheryl Masino stir up rambunctious spirit and enthusiastic yells for "old" Notre Dame with a wave of the hand.

"Work and pray every day, Motto we acclaim . . . !" These words belie the vivacious, spirited playing of Notre Dame's athletes. The glum faces of Holy Cross rooters seem to concede that it was a game well played—even though we won!

Effervescent joy is written all over the faces of Notre Dame's four lively pom-pom girls, Toni Aiello, Melinda O'Brien, Kathy Imvalle, and Karen Duffy.

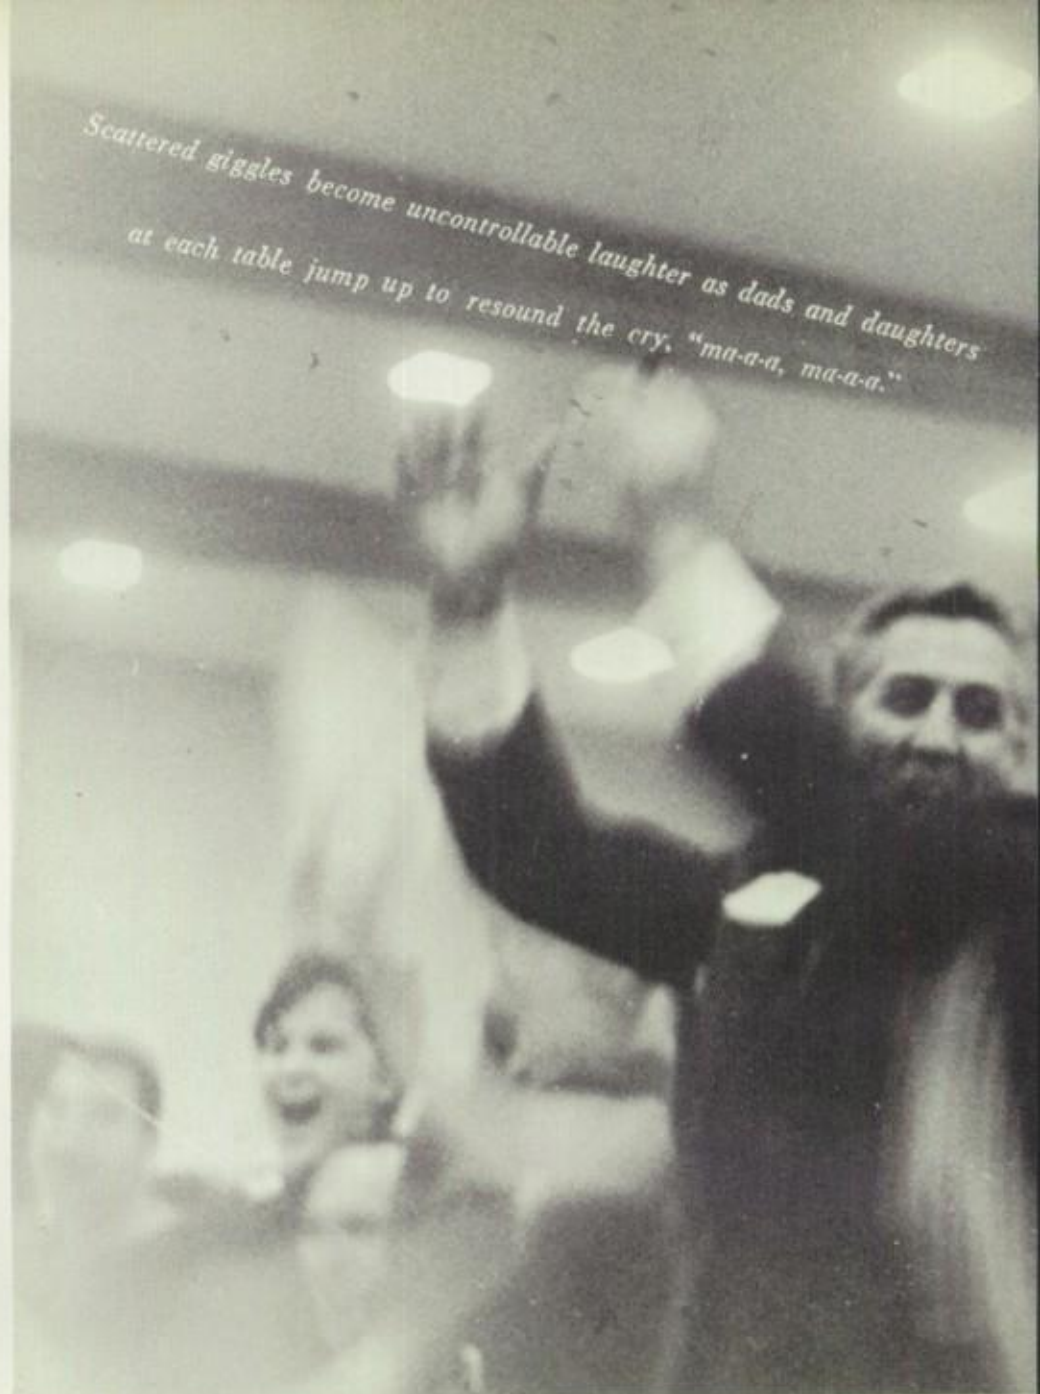

Three distinct poses from three poised and graceful players prove that the long hours of practice were not wasted.

An exuberant quartet, Mr. D'anno, Mr. Fergundes, Mr. Snyder, and Mr. Rowe, display hidden talent as they sing a melody of "oldies but goodies."

Brave knights in shining armor create a whimsical spirit while each one tries to persuade "ma'-lady" to accompany him to the fair.

Scattered giggles become uncontrollable laughter as dads and daughters at each table jump up to resound the cry, "ma-a-a, ma-a-a."

Dad Daughter NIGHT

NOVEMBER 27

A Dad and Daughter Night could never BE without Dads and Daughters, but there are a few other necessary ingredients, such as delicious foods, exciting entertainment, and mirth-provoking games. The "be home by 12:00" and "no, you cannot have the car" dads have proven time and time again that they can jump higher, sing more, and laugh louder than their vivacious daughters. This wonderful fun-filled evening left all who attended with the unforgettable memory of that hilarious experience—"Little Tommy Tinker sat on a clinker and he began to cry: 'Ma-a! Ma-a! Poor little innocent guy!'"

LANGUAGE CLUB'S Christmas Carols AND DECEMBER'S FOG

Latin students dressed as Wassil singers sang of the birth of the Savior in a series of timeless carols.

Intense concentration mirrored in the profile of two students reflect the theme of the Language Club's presentation of a program conveying the universality of Christmas through the songs and customs of three different cultures: Latin, French and Spanish.

WINNERS

The beautiful campus of St. Mary's College, Moraga, was the setting for the Annual Foreign Language Congress held on April 6, where language students from California schools participated in oral and written competitive examinations. Four Notre Dame students received first place awards in their divisions: Carol Navone, Latin Honors Division; Susan Waters, Latin II; Julianne Schuh, French III; Andrea Finke, Spanish I.

singing-laughing

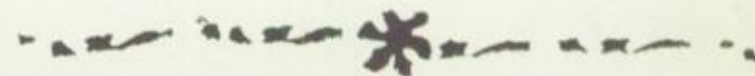

Many-colored packages, wrapped with special care and beautifully hand stamped by the seniors, awaited the trip to the Villa where they would bring joy and happiness to the hearts of the sisters.

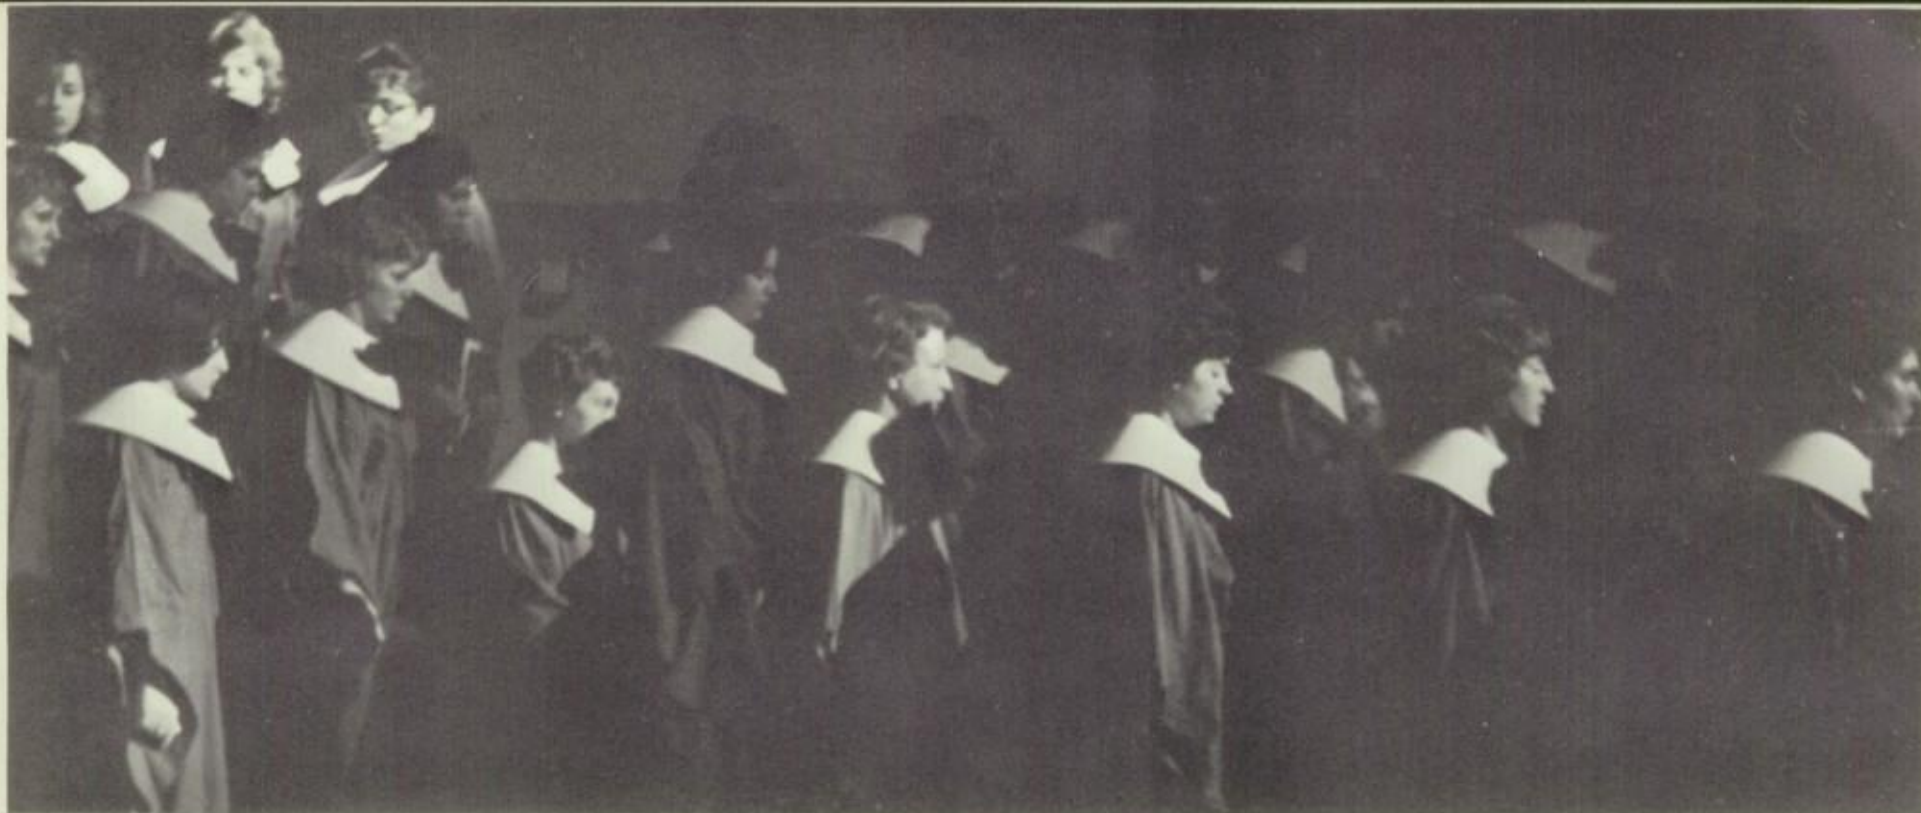

Seniors trim the traditional tree that stood loftily in the midst of the hall transforming our everyday gym into a "Wonderland at Night" full of the joy and excitement of the annual Christmas Ball.

giving-receiving and ... it rained

One rainy night in December just before Christmas, the senior class could be seen parading around the gym in traditionally red gowns with not-to-well-secured stiff white collars that made everyone look like a not-too-miniature Christmas tree. Once in the bus voices in high ecstasies of excitement could be heard along the freeway to Saratoga as the caravan of seniors vocalized in anticipation of their annual Christmas caroling at the Villa and Novitiate of the Sisters of Notre Dame. At the rain-drenched Villa the childlike joy of the sisters shone as gaily wrapped packages and numerous Christmas carols were deposited there. The cheerful smiles of the professed sisters and the delightful mirth and merriment so genuinely expressed by the novices and postulants at the novitiate made memorable this night of singing and laughing, giving and receiving.

Great spirit is diffused as the world unites in the universal joy of the Yuletide season. For at Christmas the immortal story is told, the story retold through the centuries of the fulfillment of the Promise. This coming of the Savior and His message of good will is heralded by jubilant seniors as they share in this world-wide spirit through the annual presentation of the Christmas Cantata.

The seniors come off the stage—robed, "head-dressed", and "angelicised", after their moment of glory.

The STORY retold

December 1

Mary and Joseph pause, revealing the Christ Child to a world veiled in a mist of darkness on the momentous occasion of Christmas.

The folk music of the Appalachian Highlands provided the setting of this year's Senior Cantata. Through the simple song and story of the folk drama, the music led us back from modern times to the reign of Caesar Augustus and the birth of the Child—truly an event of "Wonderous Love."

CHRISTMAS CHEER! SANTA'S HERE!

BOTH FACULTY AND STUDENTS DELIGHTEDLY DISCOVERED AN UNEXPECTED VISITOR FROM THE NORTH POLE AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE CHRISTMAS ASSEMBLY. ALL RECEIVED A GIFT FROM HIS ELFIN HELPERS WHO REMARKABLY RESEMBLED MEMBERS OF THE STUDENT COUNCIL.

A straightforward and straightfaced foursome of seniors stand guard on the way of the Christ Child.

MARCHING FOR DIMES

Efficient organization, wide-spread advertising, contagious enthusiasm, and plain hard work made this year's March of Dimes campaign surpass all others in the history of the school. Chairman Donna Serra, ably assisted by Carol Blase and Pat Stockley, spearheaded the January 4th March for Dimes which found almost 400 Notre Dame stu-

Although the attempt to live in Christ characterizes the whole Sodalist way of life this ideal is expressed publicly during the ceremony of Sodalist Consecration, held this year in our convent chapel.

...through, with, and as Mary

Today's world is one of dollars, deceit, and drudgery. It is a world that runs at such a pace that the brilliant fire of God's love often appears as a dim flicker. Therefore, if this fire is to be visible throughout life, it must be kindled within mankind by those who set the pace. The Sodalist sees this reality as necessity. She reaches out to Mary, Mother of Incarnate Truth, and discovers there the perfect model of God's love illumining man. Through, with, and as Mary, the Sodalist sets her light before men.

Mardi Gras — a term synonymous with confetti, laughter, and games — is in reality a prelude to the serious celebration of Lent. This year Sodalists began a Mardi Gras of fun with a game of real skill — a walnut race. The aim was to reach the finish line carrying walnuts on teaspoons; the problem: NO HANDS ALLOWED!!

Sodality Moderator, Sister Catherine Marie, shares some of the fun of Mardi Gras with Pat Hennessy, Sodality Prefect, and Tonine Schirle.

Life beautifully lived is an art. To prove this thesis nine high schools in which Sisters of Notre Dame teach from Los Angeles to Marysville gathered at Notre Dame, Belmont, on March 23 for the first annual Fine Arts Day. Through dramatic presentations, choral arrangements, and a magnificent and varied art exhibit, the participating schools shared their mutual esteem for and appreciation of the cultural aspects of life on what will long be remembered as a fine Fine Arts Day.

FINE ARTS DAY

BELMONT
MARCH 23

CHORAL

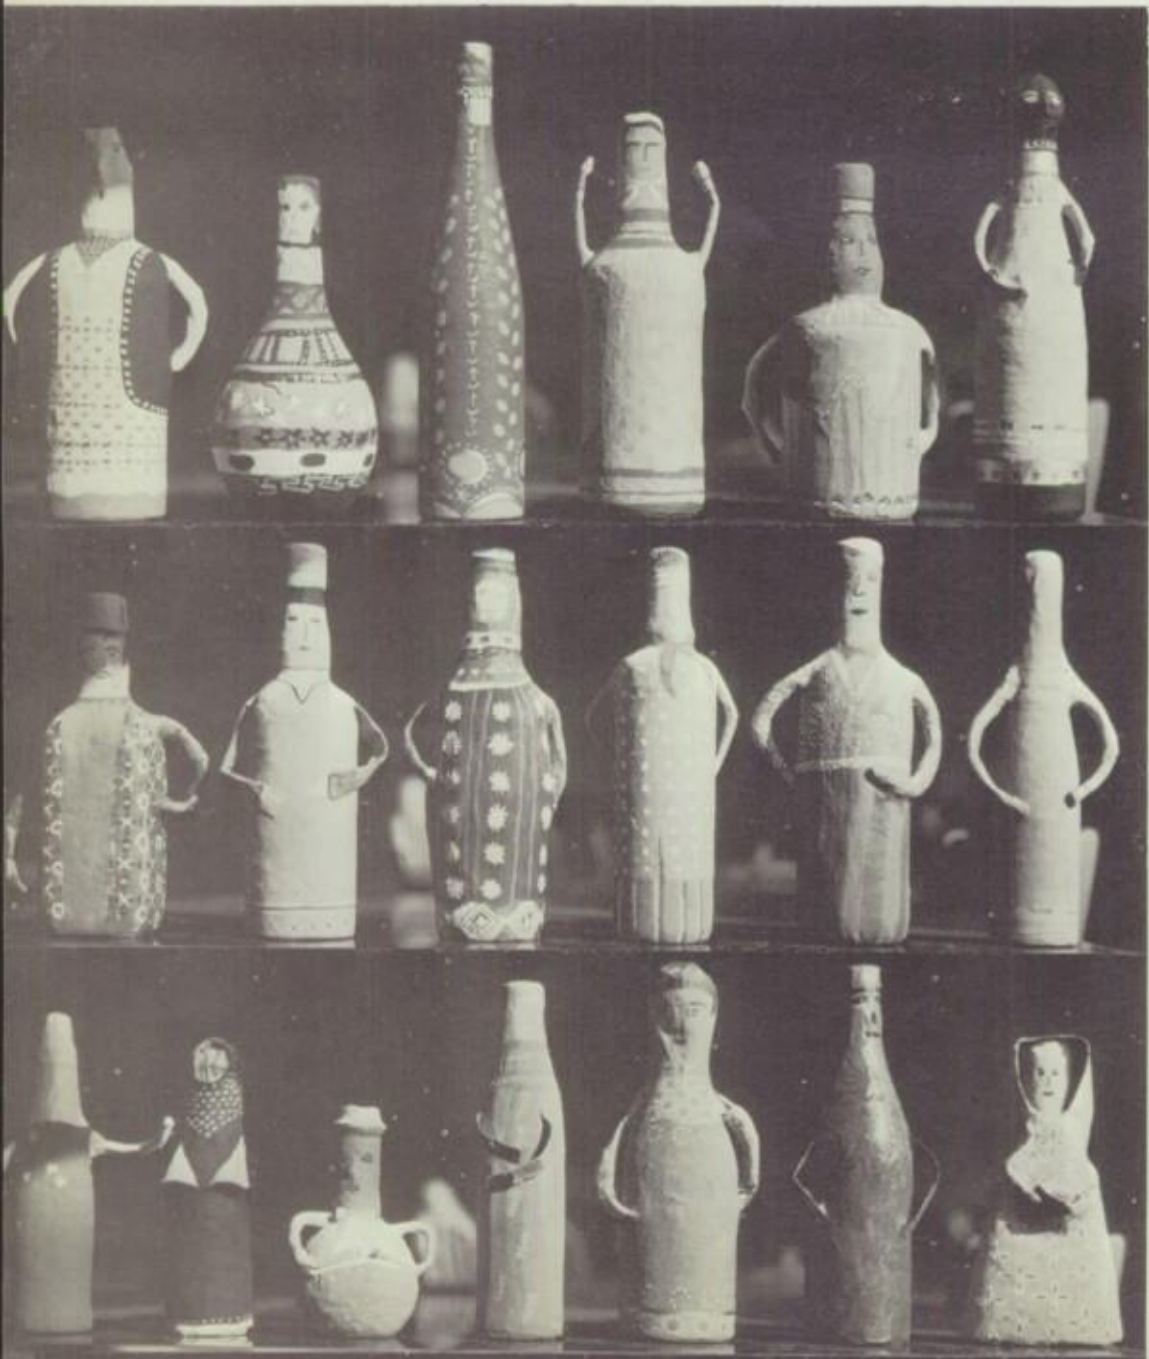

Song is the rampart of many, a refuge from reality, a realm of fantasy and wonder. The dynamics of song create melodious moods to captivate those seeking its splendor. Through this ability to capture, hold, and explore a mood, our choral group, under the able direction of Sister Martin de Pomes, has ventured into the core of beauty, making its essence 'enrich the life of Notre Dame. During the school year, the choral group has performed for the Alumnae, at the Dad-Daughter night, the Christmas Cantata, the Mother-Daughter night and the Mikado. They were chosen to represent the Archdiocese in an A Capella Contest, and they also participated in the Fine Arts Festival at Belmont and the Afternoon of Music at Riordon High School in San Francisco.

In a display of art work on Fine Arts Day beauty, originality, and creativity reigned high as students admired boxes and booklets, statues, mosaics, and paintings produced by Notre Dame artists.

Inez Escapado explains to a bland Inspector Pearson, "When my father, the Hashbash, he point the gun at them the señores they agree."

In a moment of frustrated fury Mother Peck reveals Mother Trevor's well-kept secret and to the dismay of Reverend Mother exposes the young sister as still another suspect in the web of investigation.

Teddy Cieszko climaxes a brilliant performance with her portrayal of a pitiously broken old woman finally brought to confession by a crushing guilt.

SOCIAL STUDIES

World Consciousness

Father John Blewett, S.J., Dean of Studies at Sophia University, Tokyo, addressed the Student Body with a challenging and perceptive panorama of our multi-racial, multi-cultural world. He emphasized that modern communications and technological advances make it vital for us to understand and see the good in other ways of life.

The industrious atmosphere of this progressive age offers a challenge to those who envision the expanse of tomorrow. The desire to participate in the world's affairs is part of our student vision. Those who accept the challenge transform this vision into actuality. Previous to entering the adult world, however, we must set standards for ourselves; but before we can attain these self-set goals, we must first have a foundation—knowledge of the past. Time continues—never ceasing or faltering—demanding new products of man's creativity. Time has seen us begin, develop, and now she wonders at our future. We pause, we wonder, we delve into the history of our past, hoping to discover there insights into our future.

FINALIST

Cathy Costello, competing with top students from the high schools of Santa Clara County in a panel discussing American economics, won finalist place in the first annual GEMCO Scholarship contest. She was awarded a certificate and check at an Awards Banquet held on May 17 at Fulmer's Golden Doors.

Relaxed by flying pom poms and dancing feet, the Varsity basketball team "plays possum" before the second half of a big game.

Much of the crucial strategy for victory is planned off the court in tense moments of encouragement and coaching from Miss Barreto, the Captain Courageous of the Junior Varsity.

PATH TO THE

PENNANT

With contagious enthusiasm Tigers, Panthers, Pandas, and Hornets were caged in Julie Billiard Hall on March 29th for the color-filled intramural Basketball Playoffs. Gay and original decorations amid bubbles, balloons, and cheering, and lively half-time entertainment including a senior hoop dance and a sophomore version of the Glen Miller orchestra, tallied up a happy, noisy evening. Although the sophomores won the inter-class competition, the play-off championship went to the seniors while junior Panthers pounced on the spirit pennant.

Because in any vocation it is part of woman's nature to be the heart of the home, Notre Dame helps mold the future through the Home Economics Department.

ENGLISH BIRTHDAY PARTY

April twenty-third is a very special day in the hearts of all English majors and minors as well. It's Shakespeare's birthday! And Sister Roberta Julie's senior English classes, being perforce fans of the Immortal Bard, decided to give Willie a true twentieth century birthday party—complete with colored streamers, birthday singing, and, of course, a dramatic and delightful poetry hour.

Literature is a fabric of fascination woven of words and wonder and bearing the imprint of the culture from which it springs. It is colored by romance and adventure, laughter and illusion, dreams and desperate hopes, fear and angry resentment — things which have provoked our thought as we have ventured into this written world of wonder through our English classes. There we have floated down the muddy Mississippi with care-free Huck and Jim, or watched with horror a mighty Macbeth slowly corrupt with power and ambition, or witnessed an eerie tale of intrigue and revenge at Wuthering Heights. Whether we have studied Shakespeare or Steinback, drama or Dickens, mythology or modern poetry, our English classes have brought us into contact with the rich tapestry of human experience.

Barbara Andes and Mary Doeltz respectively received fifteen and thirty-five dollars for their second and first place essays in the state finals of the contest on the Book of Kells sponsored by the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Mary received an additional twenty-five dollars for a third place ranking on the national level.

National Forensic League Members

Since the dawn of language man has delighted in stories and plays that tell of heartbreak and drama, laughter and triumph. This year for the first time Notre Dame has participated in the National Forensic League to develop talent in public speaking and to cultivate enjoyment of the art of oral interpretation.

Representing Notre Dame in the Native Sons of the Golden West Oratorical Contest, Joanne Banker presented a dramatic speech on the life of Joaquin Murietta.

Carol Blase was the recipient of a first place trophy in the oratorical division of the Santa Clara County Forensic League Meet.

GALA NIGHTS OF MUSIC

*For the enjoyment of parents,

the annual Spring Recital under the direction of Sister Martin de Porres and Mrs. Dorothy King.*

On April 30 Pam Diebel and Charleen Bittel presented a piano recital which entitled them to Silver Pins, symbolizing countless hours of diligent practice and proficiency in music.

Music lies in a realm of sweet compulsion. Its echoes tremble deep in the heart's core and erupt in sensuous swells of sound. The golden tongue of music, murmuring these sweet sounds, fills us with that unity in diversity which is the beauty of harmony. For beauty is born through music's enchantment, and through beauty, music becomes an everlasting joy.

MARY'S DAY

May 3

May is a time of giving and doing for Mary who is always giving and doing for us. With love we made happy-colored banners, each honoring Mary as Queen of a different nation, and carried them in her procession. Our president, Mary Ann Westerhouse, crowned Mary our Queen, and then each girl offered herself in the form of the unconsecrated host to Mary's Son in the offertory procession at Mass.

Reach out with a child-like sense of wonder to grasp the beauty in the simple and the everyday.

LINDA FUSELIER Queen

Periodically somebody shouted a triumphant "Bingo" amid constant laughter and gaiety while looks of surprise lighted the faces of Fortune's chosen few who eagerly explored colorfully wrapped mysteries. Happy, hungry hundreds devoured mounds of ice cream, cotton candy, and special sweets before and after an off-and-on-all-day-lunch. Pizza vied with hot dogs, french fries, and beans; popcorn and snow cones filled the people, lightened their hearts, and emptied their pockets. Stuffed animals were eagerly adopted and accurate aimers captured bowled goldfish. Everyone got a chance to demonstrate her true sentiments toward texts of all shapes, sizes, and subjects, and one-day-wizzards proudly displayed diplomas. Raffles, records, and homeroom royalty all added to the excitement of the occasion: a fun-filled, mission-minded Carnival Day.

FUTURE

Roz Schiros, president of the Future Nurses Club, works in league with its Moderator, Miss Barreto, to give members some practical briefing in the high ideals of the nursing vocation.

The business heart of any organization is its central office, crossroads of the constant ebb and flow of communication. Mrs. Marie Lucchetti, school secretary, has efficiently and effectively handled the all-important and manifold clerical work of the school.

MRS. LUCCHETTI, School Secretary

MRS. TUFTS, Cafeteria Manager

The rather breath-taking task of providing a hot lunch for over a hundred people each day poses no problem for Mrs. Gladys Tufts. Her long years of service in the Notre Dame cafeteria has won her a much respected place on campus.

ACTIVE WORKERS

NURSES CLUB

Love of man founded on love of God and expressed in a willingness to serve the suffering is the ideal with the Future Nurses Club. Aligning this ideal with the practical knowledge of medical professions is the realistic aim of this campus organization which, under the guidance of its moderator, Miss Stella Barreto, and its officers, Ros Shiros, Carol Blase, and Pat Reilly, has offered students this year a variety of guest speakers as well as interesting field trips to the County Hospital, and to Shriners' Hospital and St. Joseph's School of Nursing in San Francisco.

AND FAMILIAR SIGHTS

Besides being a term of relativity, "What goes up must come down," is the motto of the Notre Dame Spirit Club whose moderator, Sister Catherine Roberta, is as Irish as its mascot, the Leprechaun. Activities of the Dads and Mothers as well as on-campus games and events have found Spirit Club committees contributing homespun and often hidden service: decorating goal posts, setting and unsetting tables, and arranging precise patterns of innumerable chairs.

SPIRIT CLUB

Virginia Lucchesi, president of the Spirit Club, and Emily Bernabe, secretary, have had an Argus-eyed awareness of opportunities for service; cheerful, self-giving and willing to-helpness have characterized their leadership of this year's Spirit Club Chairmen: Teddy Cieszko, Donna Cambra, Nancy Calcagno, Rita McMahon, Karen Duffy, Patricia Hennessy, Kathy McCarthy, Joan Boker, Carol Blase, Joyce Panatoni, Rosemarie Fasano.

Cathy Waldron, president of the Library Club, is better known as a mender of books, a cataloguer of cards, and a giver of hours to the Notre Dame library.

Books make possible vast and multi-sided experience and insight into life and into world progress, insight far beyond the first hand possibilities of any one lifetime. Recording daily statistics on the capacity and use of the school library, shelving, mending, and checking books in and out is part of the routine smoothly operated by the thirty members of the Library Club, under the direction of Sister Marie Robert, moderator.

Challenge of the UNKNOWN

Curiosity lies at the root of man's discovery. Driven by the urge to discover, man has evolved by means of his ingenuity and imagination a new era of scientific revolution. Through chemistry man has entered into the darker recesses of reason in a search for knowledge of the substances. In the field of physics he has probed into the material world and its phenomena, striving to understand rather than to exploit its dimensions. Compelled by the desire to know, he has groped into the darkness to grasp the truths of time.

MATH

Mathematics is the art of recording quantities. Beginning as the crude scratches of primitive man, math has helped civilization expand through the ages. It has given us a reality of a machine age, an electronic and atomic age, and now a space age. Math has led us out of the unknown to the outstretched hands of knowledge. It is the spark to invention and discovery — a key to progress — leading man past the boundaries of earth to the infinity of space.

The study of business is an exciting and challenging study of the more practical side of life. It is a world of knowledge and skill — the knowledge of filing, economics, and mathematics, the skill and proficiency of typing, shorthand, and dictation — which are the foundations of a successful business woman. To those willing to expend the effort the Business Department offers both the knowledge and the skill needed for competency in the exacting world of business.

Competence enables these business students to lighten the clerical burden involved in the activities of the Mothers' Guild and the Dads' Club as they experience the truth that hard work is at the core of perfection.

BUSINESS

Michele Costere, Sue Crews, Rogelia Trujillo, Jeanne Freitas, Kathy Bosso, and Joyce Panattoni, gold pin winners in the Fiftieth International OGA Exhibit, admire the Prize School Wall Plaque which their short-hand proficiency merited for the school.

Before the seniors involved themselves in the mad, mad, mad rush of graduation, they spent a peaceful day on the beautiful grounds of the Saratoga novitiate meditating on their role in the world and the role of God in their world. The Mothers' Guild provided lunch and Reverend James P. McKay, Archdiocesan Director of Vocations, provided much food for thought, enabling the seniors to focus their vision on One before becoming involved in the many activities ahead.

May love penetrate our beings and bring forth praise for Him Whose Beauty we see reflected in our world, for Him Whose Beauty is past change.

Seniors unite with the student body in prayers of thanksgiving at the Baccalaureate Mass celebrated by Father Raymond Prindiville, S.J., in St. Joseph's Church on June sixth.

"Among My Souvenirs", chosen by the sophomores as this year's theme for the Sophomore-Senior Brunch, brought lingering laughter as seniors recalled their years at Notre Dame.

Happiness is a scholarship saying your speech correctly an award you didn't expect and even an award you did expect people applauding for you - and 106 others

NANCY COSSO
